Migrant Worker Seasonal Transportation

Brief:

In order to support the large production of produce out expected of farms during peak growing seasons, many farming operations recruit hundreds of Temporary Migrant Workers from countries with whom their governments have work exchange agreements on an annual basis. Momentum is contracted to move thousands of workers on charter flights at the start of the growing season, and return them home at its close.

Solution:

Each year, Momentum contracts narrow and widebody aircrafts in the Spring on an as needed basis, to suit client's schedules and transports them to nearest feasible airports to the final destination farm placements of the workers, to help reduce the overall length of their travel journey. We dedicate 24/7 operations teams to assist clients as on-site liaison and manage manifesting and logistics to ensure no detail or bag is lost in the mass movements.

Results:

Clients are able to focus on their local operating logistics, while Momentum handles the travel process from start to finish. Given Momentum's unparalleled network of safe, reliable air transportation options and maximized buying power, clients are assured to receive the best possible pricing.
